

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSER

A permeable port constituted by an aperture and a porous member for covering the aperture is provided in a part of an intake air passageway portion of an air intake apparatus. The permeable port is disposed in at least a part of a region between the central position of the whole length of an air intake duct and the central position of the whole length of the intake air passageway portion.